

I see the rainbow of hope...

I see the rainbow of hope in these cloudy days of difficult times...

Red is the blood spilt of innocent victims from the corona-virus.

Orange is the confusion on the faces of children during this lockdown.

Yellow is the colour of illness; pale faces sleeping in hospital beds.

Green is the greed of shoppers fighting in supermarkets.

Blue is the sadness in tears as their loved ones are buried.

Purple is the power of this pandemic, leaving people perplexed or sometimes paranoid.

But I see the red of the love from the Keyworkers sacrificing their time and their lives; the orange of strength and energy of the suffering patients; the yellow of the glimmering rays of hope in the eyes of the dying citizens; the green of the rebirth of nature and unpolluted seas and skies; the blue of the colour and bravery of the NHS staff and the purple of the resilient power of Global unity in 2020.
